AAAAARRRRGGGhhhh!

Okay, I've had it! Enough with the Karma already. Hello. As I'm writing this, it's May 21st, and I'm midway through with Book Fifteen. I usually don't write my editorials until after I finish the book, but um, as you may or may not have heard, I've had a wee, little eye problem this month, and I've had to take a few weeks off drawing WANDERING STAR. (Jeez, I can't tell ya how freak'n bored I am! Whoop!) Anywayzer, it's like dis, kids, I've got Glaucoma. You know, the OLD PEOPLE disease? Seems I have these really narrow lenses in my eyes, so I fall into something like the 1 percent of the population that gets to have Glaucoma early in life. Anyway, don't freak out. Book fifteen is obviously finished if yer holding this, so I'm not blind or anything. I just had a very full coupl'a weeks. The exact name of my little dilemma is Acute Closed Angle Glaucoma, which is unlike the one you usually hear about, Open Angle Glaucoma, this one doesn't sneak up on you, stealing your vision away quietly. Nope. Closed Angle just shows up-POW-with severe pain, nausea, red-eye, and loss of vision. That was me, Wednesday, March 8th, at 10 p.m. I was just sitting there, all innocent-like, in my chair, minding my own business and inking in a page, and-BLAMMO-there it was on the left side of my head. Ouch! Anyway, I thought it was a migraine, so I gulped down several aspirins and tried to get some sleep. The next day, at noon, I went to the local hospital, still in a lot of pain, but now also with nausea and a loss of vision in the left eye. UNFORTUNATELY, Closed Angle Glaucoma is one of those things the doctors are likely to mis-diagnose in the Emergency Room, so I was sent home with migraine medicine. Okay, kids, take a note. I asked Dr. Ing, the Eye Doctor who's been working on my eyes, if there are any big, red, flashing signs of Closed Angle Glaucoma and here they are: nausea and dilated pupil. So, if ya go to the emergency room and with what you think is the worst migraine of your life, and you also have those two things, tell the nice doctor to CHECK FOR GLAUCOMA!!! The quicker the diagnosis, the less damage you're gonna have, so it's important. Sorry if I sound a little miffed, but Thursday and Friday were a freak'n nightmare and I sure would'a like to have caught it sooner. By Saturday, though the pain had ebbed a little, my vision still hadn't returned in my left eye, so I decided to call the hospital. The receptionist told me that, no, that wasn't normal (temporary loss of vision isn't unusual with migraines, but it usually returns in eight hours), but they were swamped and that I should probably go to Riverside. So I did. Riverside looked like the "CV" ER on a bad day. It was swamped with sick people, like myself, and little student doctors were running amok everywhere. One of them, whose name I've forgotten, but whom I owe my eyesight to, wandered over, asked me the regular ER questions, and looked in my left eye with his little, lighted eye-thingamajig... "Oh dear," he said. (I've come to discover that "Oh dear" coming from a doctor is generally not good news.) "What? What?" I said. And he gave me this worried, but trying very hard to look comforting, look and patted me on the shoulder. "I'll be right back," he said in a quiet, almost meek voice. He came back a few minutes later with the Doc-In-Charge. This guy also looked at my eye with the lighted thingamabobbie, and then complimented my student doctor for his discovery. they then told me that what I had was Glaucoma, and they would send for the Eye Specialist right away. But, meanwhile... would I let the other student doctors look at my eyes? My kind of Glaucoma is rare, especially in my age group, and it was going to be on their final exam. Moments later the group of them came creeping up on me. All those bright, young faces. None of them could've been older than twenty-five. Lord, they were puppies! PUPPIES! And all of them were just so incredibly eager to see the Glaucoma Lady. Anyway, the Doc-In-Charge explained to them what to look for as they used the lighted do-dad

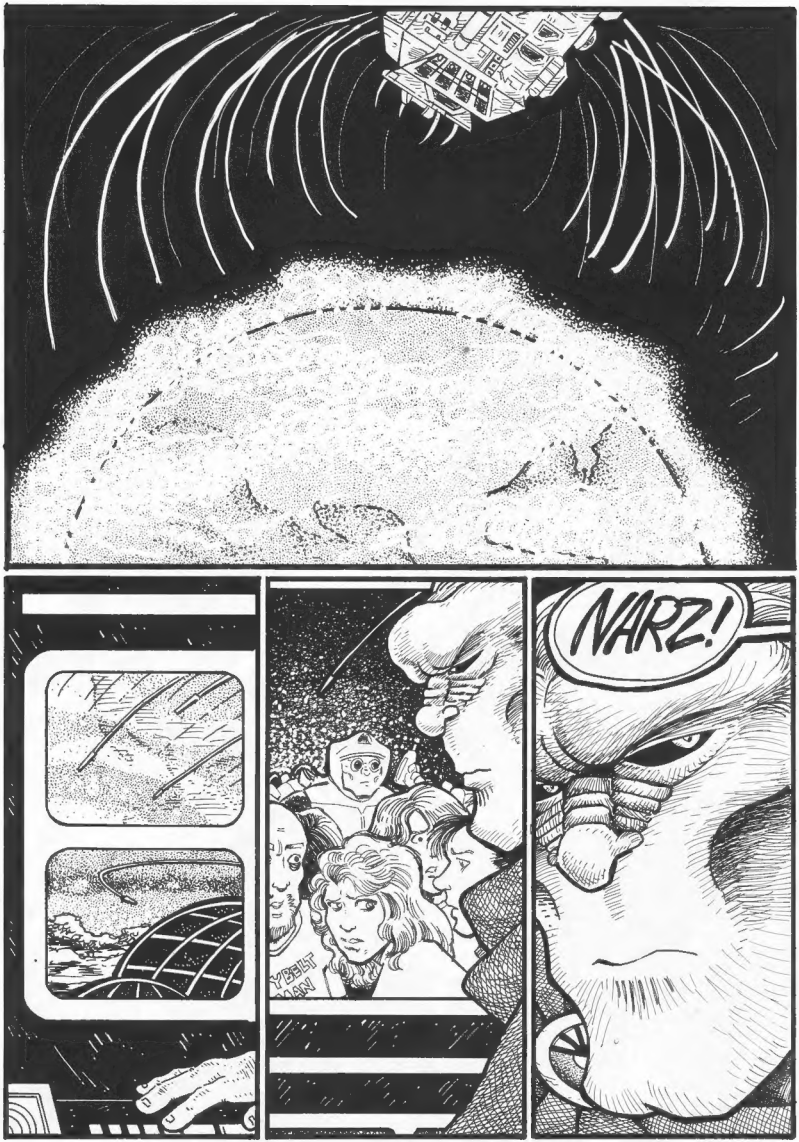
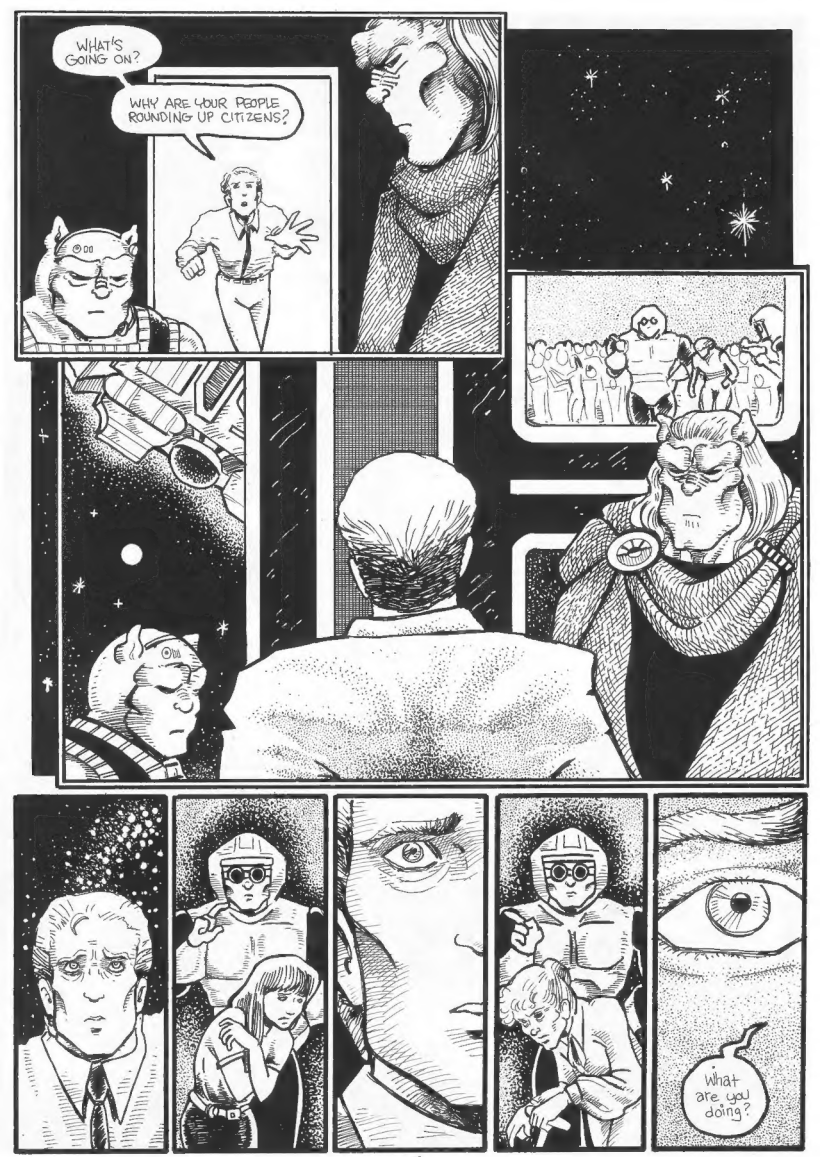
ONE

SO...
...THE KEKAKOPOLOUS IS FINALLY HERE.
SUCH A SLOW, PONDEROUS AGENT OF DEATH.
SIGH.
I HAD HOPED TO HAVE THIS LITTLE WAR FINISHED BEFORE IT GOT HERE.

THERE IS NO GLORY IN A BATTLE WHERE YOUR OPPONENT HAS NO CHANCE AGAINST YOU.
SIR,
THEY'RE HAILING YOU.
PUT IT ON THE MAIN VIEWSCREEN, BEZ.
HELLO, LEFER.
HOW WAS YOUR JOURNEY?
FAR TOO LONG, NARZ.
TOO LONG.
IF ONLY IT COULD TRAVEL AS FAST...
...AS IT CAN DESTROY.
Yes.
I SEE THAT YOUR PEOPLE HAVE ALREADY SENT US THE COORDINATES FOR OUR LANDING PARTIES.
YOU ARE AS EFFICIENT AS ALWAYS, NARZ.
MAY MY PEOPLE PROCEED?
YOU MAY.



NARZ!



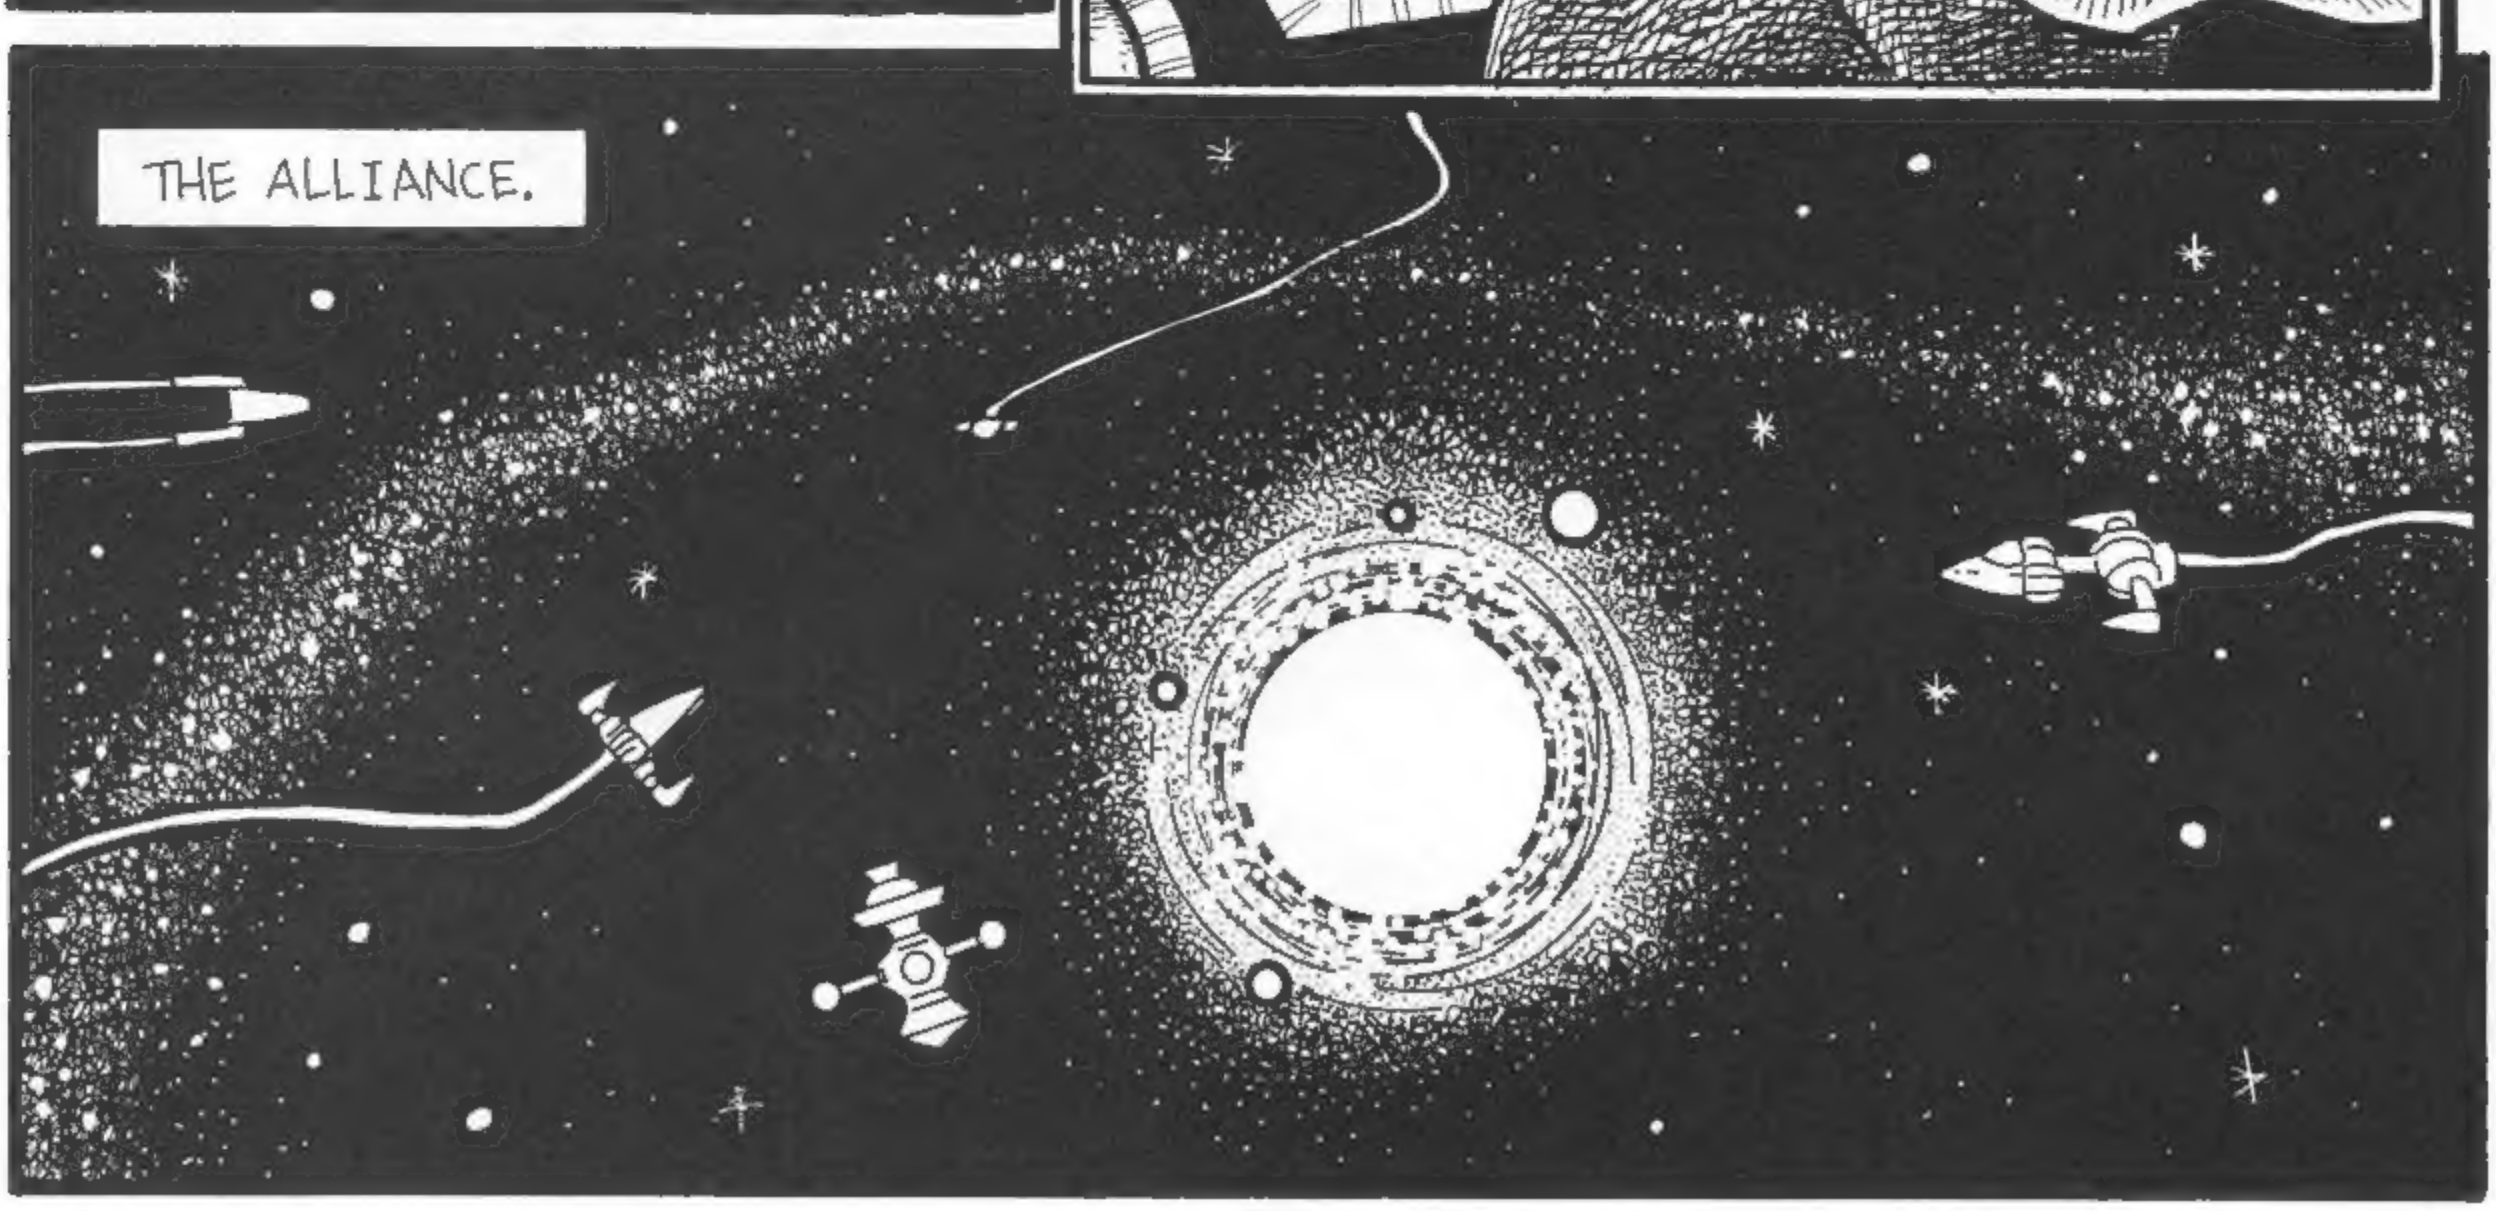
WHAT'S GOING ON?
WHY ARE YOUR PEOPLE ROUNDING UP CITIZENS?
What are you doing?

NARZ—
WHAT ARE YOU DOING?
PLEASE!
WE ARE PROCESSING EARTH.
What?
WE'VE DEPLOYED MED-SHIPS TO EVERY MAJOR CITY ON EARTH.
EVERY ABLE-BODIED MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD WILL BE ESCORTED TO THEM SO THAT WE MAY INTRODUCE THEM TO THE TUL'SAR.
BUT—WE'RE ALLIES
WE'RE SUPPOSED TO HAVE EQUAL RIGHTS IN THE BONO KIRIAN EMPIRE.
AND SO YOU WILL.
REALLY, SAMUAL.
DO YOU REALLY THINK THE BONO KIRIAN EMPIRE COULD MAINTAIN CONTROL OVER SO MANY SOLAR SYSTEMS...
...IF WE ALLOWED EVERYONE FREE WILL?
YOU CAN'T IMAGINE HOW DIFFICULT IT WAS BEFORE THE TUL'SAR.
WE HAD TO KILL A GREAT MANY PEOPLE EACH DAY JUST TO KEEP THE PEACE, AND FEAR ONLY GOES SO FAR.
YOU'RE A MONSTER!
SO SAY THE FALLEN.

NO.

SWOOOOSH!

SIR, SHALL I GO GET HIM?
NO.
LET HIM BE..
WHAT CAN HE DO?



THE ALLIANCE.

BAM!

MADISON!
JOEY?

RUN!

EXCUSE ME?
RUN!
RUN, I SAY!
RUN FOR YOUR LIFE!

OH, I SEE.
CASANDRA'S OUT OF THE HOSPITAL, ISN'T SHE?

YES!
RUN!
NO, THANK YOU.
I THINK I'D RATHER STAY AND GET IT OVER WITH.

Okay Dokey.
BAM!
MADISON!
SMILE JOBE!
STOMP! PLOP! STUMBLE!
PLOP! PLOP!
OUCH! ★
STUMBLE STOMP
STOMP STOMP! STUMBLE! PLOP!
OOF!
HOW DO PEOPLE WALK WITH THESE THINGS?
STOMP! PLOP! STUMBLE! PLOP!
HELLO, MADISON.
LONG TIME. NO SEE.
Hello Casandra.

I COULD JUST KILL YOU, DO YOU KNOW THAT?
TWO WEEKS!
TWO WEEKS IN THAT ©#$# HOSPITAL BED!
DYING OF BOREDOM!
THEY DON'T EVEN HAVE TV'S IN THE ROOMS!
JUST THAT HORRIBLE FLUTEY MUSIC!
IT'S SUPPOSED TO PROMOTE HEALING.
SIGH!
JOEY COULD YOU GET ME A CHAIR?
WHOOF!
THANKS, JOEY
I OUGHTA BEAT YOU BLACK AND BLUE WITH MY CRUTCH!

SIGH.
COMING SOON DARKLIGHT.. OOH COOL-NEATO!
SAFETY BELT MAN
SO~
~HOW'S MEKON DOING
JOEY SAID HE'D HAD HIS SURGERY.
YES.
HE'S STILL IN RECOVERY, BUT HE'S DOING FINE.
THEY DID MANAGE TO REMOVE THE TUL'SAR IN ONE PIECE, SO THEY COULD STUDY IT.
DID MEKON'S FATHER EVER SHOW UP?
NO
BUT YOU HAVE TO REMEMBER HIS DAD'S A BUSY MAN.
HOT CHOCOLATE, MI'LADY?
THANKS, JOEY.
I STILL THINK HIS FATHER SHOULD HAVE FOUND A WAY TO VISIT HIM.
WELL, CASI, I FEAR..
...WAR SORTA COMPLICATES THE "SHOULDS" AND "SHOULD NOTS".

I SUPPOSE SO.

WE INTERRUPT THIS BROADCAST FOR AN IMPORTANT NEWS BULLETIN!
TNO WAR UPDATE

SEVERAL RECENT REPORTS FROM OUR PEOPLE ON THE FRONT LINES SEEM TO INDICATE THAT THE BONO KIRIAN FORCES ALL ALONG ALLIANCE BORDERS ARE WITHDRAWING.
AT PRESENT, THERE IS NO EXPLANATION FOR THIS STRANGE TURN OF EVENTS, AND THE COUNCIL OF PLANETS REFUSES TO SPECULATE ON WHAT THIS COULD MEAN.
THOUGH THE BONO KIRO HAVE LOST INTEREST IN EXPANDING THEIR AREA OF CONTROL FOR THE TIME BEING...
...THERE IS NO EVIDENCE THAT THEY PLAN TO WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM THE ALLIANCE WORLDS CAPTURED DURING THIS LONG, DARK YEAR.
WE WILL CONTINUE TO BRING YOU UPDATES AS EVENTS UNFOLD.
WE WILL NOW RETURN YOU TO THE PROGRAM IN PROGRESS.

MAN.
Man
oh
Man
oh
MAN!
DO YOU KNOW WHAT THIS COULD MEAN?
THIS COULD MEAN THAT THE WAR IS COMING TO AN END!
I...
...DOUBT IT, JOEY.

CASI!
THEY'RE WITHDRAWING THEIR TROOPS!
Oh Man!
IT'S GOT TO BE A POSSIBILITY!

You Never Met Narz.

Well..
No
BUT CASI!
THE BONO KIRO'VE BEEN AT US FOR ALMOST A YEAR!
THINK OF ALL THE WEAPONS, SHIPS AND SUPPLIES IT TAKES TO WAGE WAR THAT LONG!

YES, JOEY~
~BUT THEY'VE DONE IT SUCCESSFULLY!
THEY'VE CAPTURED A LOT OF PLANETS IN THAT TIME, PLANETS THAT CAN SUPPLY MORE WEAPONS, SHIPS AND SUPPLIES.
AND MORE TROOPS.
THANKS TO THE TUL'SAR.

WELL, YES, BUT~
~THOSE PLANETS CAN'T BE EASY TO CONTROL. THERE HAS TO BE RESISTANCE, GUERRILLA WARFARE~
AND THE PEOPLE WORKING IN THE FACTORIES CAN'T BE VERY ENTHUSIASTIC.

OKAY, LOOK~
~MAYBE YOU'RE RIGHT~
~BUT, I'M GOING TO GO ON HOPING THAT THIS IS A GOOD SIGN THAT SOON, WE CAN ALL HAVE A BIG CELEBRATION PARTY.
I HOPE YOU'RE RIGHT.
JOEY...
C'MON CASI.
JUST ADMIT THAT IT'S A TEENIE-
-WEENIE, ITSEY-
-BITSEY, POSSIBILITY.
I CAN'T, JOEY.
DEEP DOWN I HAVE THIS HORRIBLE FEELING THAT THE WORST OF IT HASN'T YET BEGUN.
+HAAAT'S Why I Luv's ya, CASE-GIRL.
ALWAYS THE ETERNAL OPTIMIST.

Ah, A SMILE!
THAT'S AN IMPROVEMENT!
"MAYBE THERE'S HOPE FOR THE UNIVERSE YET.
"WHAT HAVE I DONE?

to peer into my eyes, and how this would look different if I had, say, cataracts. He also showed them how they could feel a definite difference in pressure in the eyes if they would just press lightly on my eyelids when I closed my eyes. It was very informative.

I really should have been more upset, I mean, there was this little voice in the back of my head going, "Glaucoma? Doesn't Glaucoma make you go BLIND?!!!" But somehow I found the whole thing just incredibly funny. And I still have to laugh when I think about all those little student doctors. Ya wanna be a hit in the ER? Come in with something a little rare. Now, if only people would get this excited to see me at a Comic Con. Of course, the next week was definitely not much fun. My left eye was extremely painful to the touch, an pretty much everything the doctors had to do to check out my eyes and get that darn pressure down hurt. Though, I should say, that I have just oodles of respect for the doctors at the Riverside Eye Clinic. (Dr. Ing in particular, who became my official doctor after the first couple of days.) Though I tried, I wasn't exactly the most cooperative patient in the world (I hate, hate, HATE pressure poking at my eyes!!!!!), and they never once lost patience with me. That made a rather unpleasant week much more tolerable. The second week wasn't fun either. Four day of laser surgery. Urk! Not fun. Not fun at all. I go in, the docs would try to drill little holes in my eyes, then I'd go home, mope, and try to think of someone I could call up and gripe to. Preferably somebody I hadn't called yesterday. I mean, I didn't want it to LOOK like I was fishing for sympathy, but, hey, what fun is being sick if ya can't get lotsa sympathy, right? Heh.

Of course, by the time you read this, it'll be long, long over. My eyes will be happy little orbs again. And I'll be drawing Book 18 or 19.

Hello. It's June 12th, and it's not over yet!!!!

Arrrggghh! But, the Book's done, and my right eye healed up really nicely from the laser surgery... Oh yeah, I didn't tell you that, did I? They did both eyes. Seems the right eye was waiting to go out too. It's all safe and comfy now, though. BUT MY LEFT EYE is being a pain.. Dr. Ing tells me that I'm going to be needing another laser touch up. SIGH. DEEP SIGH. Grumble-mumble. I shouldn't have any trouble at all finding people to have sympathy for me though, 'cuz I'm scheduled to have my surgery on July 3rd. Heh. the day before the San Diego Comic Con. Yep. I'm gonna go have the surgery, and Tru's gonna drive me up to San Diego. Where I shall endeavor to look quite pitiful. Heh heh heh. Nah, I'll be fine. I will be taking eye-drops again, but that's no biggie. And I will be wearing sunglasses all day, but hey, some of my favorite creators wear sunglasses all the time. I will be one of the sunglass toting creators from now on, though. The only really irritating thing is the Glaucoma will leave my left eye with a permanently dilated pupil. Bummer. But hey, I'll look cool. Okay, in other news, it's official. WANDERING STAR is now going to be 21 issues. Really. I'm serious this time. If ya don't believe me, SHUT UP! (I'm allowed to be cranky, it's been a stressful month.) Anyway, I'm extending all subscriptions ending on 16 to Book 18, as a bit of a thank you for hanging in there with me, and if you have Darklight issues credited for overpayment on the old 1-12 WANDERING STAR subscriptions, I'll be turning them into additional WANDERING STAR issues to boot. Now, you should have heard about all this when you got Book 13 in the mail, but I've been kinda loopy lately, so if ya haven't, please drop me a postcard and let me know, 'kay? Please? Pretty please?

I also want to throw in that my box of mail took a hard hit in the move last month, so if you sent me an order for art or sum-thin, and you haven't heard back from me, please feel free to send me a nasty postcard, so's I can fix the problem pronto. I'm a little slow answering mail these days, but if you've been waiting for sum'thin since MAY, there is a problem.

Hey, want a dog?

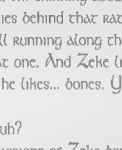
Do you remember Zeke? Simba's pal? Well, he's a bad dog. Bad. Bad. Bad. Not only does he dig these horrendous holes in the backyard, but recently, he's taken to jumping fences. Usually it's to go see some cool looking neighbor dog walking across our front yard, but man is it irritating. Have you ever tried to catch a dog who's just having too much fun smelling all the smells, and looking at all the stuff in other people's yards? Sheesh. It's exercise, I suppose. Now, we've tried building up the fence to eight feet on the front of the house where it's lowest, but still he jumps it. No running start, just a good kick off with the back legs and a quick grab at the top, and he hauls himself over. Uh huh. No lie. I'm serious. And, I'm starting to get worried. I mean, I'm thinking about where we live. You know, as in what lies behind that rather ominous six-foot high brick wall running along the right side of our back yard? Yep, that one. And Zeke likes to dig big, ol' monster holes. And, he likes... bones. Yuck. Let's change the subject.

Nice weather we're having, huh?

No, didn't help. I'm still having visions of Zeke bringing home Grampa's leg. Sigh.

Maybe it's best if I just exit before I deteriorate any further.

Toodles,



P.S. Hey, if ya notice any mistakes sneaking into the comic pages in this or any other issue, please don't pick on Preston. He sends the proof-reading corrections to me, I just sorta mess 'em up sometimes. Everybody say, "Hi, Preston!" And Preston, "thanks again."
